PERSONAL.

W. M. Foster, of Honesdale, was here yesterday.

Era H. Connell is home from Yale to spend Washington's birthday.

Mrs. Levi Carter, of Olean, who has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Carter for several days past, will leave for the east this morning.

Mrs. George B. Carter will leave for New York city this morning to be present at the opening of the German opera season, which takes place Feb. 25.

W. L. Degraff, of Tonawanda, Kan., superintendent of the Rocky Mountain district of the American Sunday School union, has been for several days in this city in the interest of the union.

The many friends of Miss Lillian Guthrie, the soprano of Elm Park church, will regret to learn of her signing a contract for next year with a leading church of New Jersey. Miss Guthrie's splendid voice and musical ability and her uniform courtesy toward the other singers of the quartette and people. Miss Guthrie's year at Elm Park closes May 1.

BUSINESS CHANGES.

Three Well Known Wyoming Avenue Firms Will Increase Their Store Room.

Several important business changes will occur on Wyoming avenue about April 1. The well-known shoe dealers, Lewis, Kelly & Davies, at 114 Wyoming avenue, have found it necessary to enlarge their store room on account of increased trade, and will include the store next door, now occupied by Weichel & Millar, china merchants, in their establishment, which will give them a handsome double store.

Weichel & Millar will remove to the commodious apartments at 124 Wyoming avenue, now occupied by J. Lawrence Stelle, which will enable them to display to better advantage their large stock of goods, which is crowded in their present store room.

Music dealer J. Lawrence Stelle will occupy handsome quarters in the Jewett building, at 203 Spruce street, where he will, as usual, keep a full line of pianos and organs from factories of well-known and reliable makers, as well as other musical goods.

HE EVADED THE LAW.

Michael Gilgallon Will Have to Answer at Quarter Sessions.

Michael Gilgallon, of Archbald, met with an unpleasant surprise in court yesterday. Some time ago he was prosecuted by Peter Estruth for making threats and was directed to pay the costs. He evaded the costs by making an affidavit setting forth that he had no property and had not disposed of any for the purpose of securing the benefit of the insolvency act.

Yesterday the final hearing in the insolvency proceedings was held and it appearing that Gilgallon had transferred property to his son about the time he declared himself an insolvent, the court directed that he be held to appear at the next term of quarter sessions court to answer the offense, which is covered by a special act of the legislature. There are many others who have evaded the payment of costs in a similar manner.

Six Thousand Poles in the City.

Lieutenants of police yesterday made returns of the telephone and electrical poles in their precincts to the chief of police. The total number of poles in the city is about 6,000, which, at a tax of 50 cents each, will bring a revenue of $300,000 per annum to the city councils.

Thousands are suffering excruciating misery from that plague of the night, Itching Piles, and say nothing about it through a sense of delicacy. All such will find an instant relief in the use of Doan's Ointment. It never fails.

BACK FROM WINCHESTER

Party Which Accompanied Judge Handley's Remains Has Returned.

BUSINESS WAS SUSPENDED

Executors Discuss "Schedule A" and the Value of the Estate—Their Estimate Only a Little Over a Million—Baltimore Sun's Account.

At 4:55 o'clock yesterday afternoon the party from this city which accompanied the remains of ex-Judge John Handley to Winchester, Va., returned home. They returned in the special car in which they made the outward trip and left Winchester Tuesday afternoon, stopping for the night in Harrisburg. On their arrival here Lemuel Amerman and John T. Richards, two of the executors of the estate, were interviewed by a Tribune reporter. It was learned from them that the business of the firm of Handley, Winchester, was closed from 10:30 to 1 o'clock the day of the funeral, which was the most largely attended of any similar event in the city's history.

What transpired in Winchester is best told in the following dispatch from a correspondent to the Baltimore Sun:

Why He Liked Winchester.

"The remains of the late Judge John Handley, of Scranton, Pa., were received here Monday night via the Cumberland Valley railroad and deposited in the Episcopal church until Tuesday morning, when the first and largest assemblage ever seen here on a similar occasion. His friendship for the late Thomas J. McKim, of Scranton, once a resident of this county, was the occasion of his first visit here, some fifteen years ago, and the acquaintance thus formed ripened into intimacy with a number of Winchester people and since that time he has been a frequent visitor.

"Several years ago he purchased the lot in Mt. Hebron cemetery in which his body now lies, and it is believed that his life here was prolonged by the fact of his becoming a citizen of the town.

"His strong sympathy with the south during the war and his admiration for the great Confederate leaders, Lee and Jackson, doubtless had not a little to do with his choice of a burial place. It is immediately in front of and adjoining the center of the Confederate cemetery.

"A called meeting of the common council was held Monday afternoon, at which his death was officially announced, resolutions of sorrow passed, and committees appointed to carry out the plans adopted for public and private recognition of the sad occasion. The council and all of the city and county officials attended the funeral in a body. The brethren, in citizens' dress, were also present, and the hundreds who could not gain admission to the church thronged the line of the procession in the unbroken masses for nearly a mile. The most beautiful among the numerous and handsome floral offerings was a design in rare and expensive flowers contributed by order of the city council of Winchester."

A Baltimore Estimate.

The Sun editorially contains the following:

"The beneficiaries to the city of Winchester, Va., by the late Judge John Handley, of Scranton, Pa., were far in excess of the first announcement. Besides leaving $250,000 for a free library for the city he makes Winchester the residuary legatee of one-third of his estate, estimated at four millions of dollars. As all the bequests as far as known do not aggregate a half million dollars, it will be seen that Winchester will get at least a million dollars, probably considerably more, in addition to the $250,000 library fund. The interest on the latter fund will be compounded until it reaches $500,000. Of this sum $250,000 is to be devoted to the erection of the 'Handley Memorial Library' and $250,000 for its maintenance. This is indeed a splendid gift, and was appropriately recognized at Winchester yesterday by a great outpouring of the people at Judge Handley's funeral.

"It is said the judge was strong in his sympathy for the south during the late war, and it is significant that some years ago he selected as his burial place a lot in front and adjoining the center of Stonewall cemetery, where over 3,000 Confederate soldiers are buried. Winchester is a historic town, and recently has been the recipient of several handsome favors."

The Sun's account of the funeral illustrates the description given the reporter by Mr. Amerman and Mr. Richards.

In the presence of Mr. Richards at Winchester a question was asked of Mr. Amerman. He said:

"You must understand that since Judge Handley's death we have been almost entirely occupied with arranging for the funeral. As far as his business matters are concerned we have only been enabled to have the will prepared and could only guess at the value of his estate.

Little More Than One Million.

"I am of the opinion that Judge Handley was worth $1,000,000. Mr. Richards places the figures higher—about $1,250,000."

"Concerning the now famous 'Schedule A,' which is missing and was mentioned in the will as containing certain individual bequests, Mr. Amerman said:

"It certainly was not with the will when we located that document. The will was filed in the private safe, which we were unable to open until the conclusion yesterday morning by Mrs. Schamber. A number of useful documents may be found when we finish looking over papers of which there is a wagon load."

The gentlemen were warm in their praise of the treatment accorded the estate party by the citizens of Winchester.

IN LOCAL THEATERS.

The lecture of Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage on "My Journey Around the World," which was postponed last week, will be delivered at the Washington hall this evening. Tickets purchased for last week will be good. It has been several years since Dr. Talmage appeared before a Scranton audience and there is no doubt but he will be welcomed by a crowded house. Tickets for the lecture are now on sale at the theater box office.

"The Derby Winner," the strong comedy and racing drama, will be seen for the first time in Scranton at the Academy of Music on Friday and Saturday evenings. The author of the play, Alfred H. Spink, is one of the best known newspaper men in the west and in writing "The Derby Winner" he has brought to bear his rich experience in turf lines, and his play in consequence shows a splendid dramatic construction. It is in four acts and seven scenes. The play is alive with strikingly realistic situations and scenes on the race track, and it has a line of comedy that is richly studded with the bright side of turf life. A matinee will be given on Friday afternoon, Washington's birthday, at 2:30. Prices, adults, 50 cents; children, 25 cents.

The "White Crook" Big Spectacular Extravaganza company will open a three days' engagement at the Davis theater today, with matinee daily. The "White Crook" is something entirely new and up-to-date, and a well and evenly balanced company do well credit to the extravaganza. The clever little singing and dancing soubrette, Miss Emma Rose Lee, and the funny Dutch and Irish comedians, Sandford and Lee, head this big company.

BARNIE'S NEW MEN.

Those He Has Signed to Play in the Scranton Team.

Manager "Billy" Barnie is in town—not "Billy" because he is undignified, but because that is the front name under which he is best known among leading base ball men throughout the country. During the last few weeks he has signed up a team of all good ones, and has six others under negotiation or in prospect. Concerning his and the directors' plans for the coming season Manager Barnie chatted entertainingly with a Tribune reporter at the Wyoming House last evening. He said:

"You must not think base ball is quiet or that I haven't been hard at work for Scranton's interest during the last few weeks.

Seven men, good ones, have been signed. I might have got a hundred of the best, but I can't have them. I have, though, six men in prospect; some of those I want and some we may do without.

"At present we have Rogers, catcher, who played last year with Scranton; Johnson, a San Francisco boy, who is climbing upward and pitched remarkably well last fall for the Lincoln, Neb. team; Fox, pitcher, of Pottsville; Clark, first base, of Hazleton; Peter Sweeney, of San Francisco, one of the most clever infielders in a minor league; Brady, who captained and played left field for Fall River, and Vinkey, a young Virginian, comparatively an unknown to the fraternity at large, but who I have had my eye on for two years and who can play in any position.

"Delaney, who pitched for Scranton in the Eastern league, is a little cory, but I think a Scranton contract for $5,000 would suit him. Ward, a young pitcher who played second for Washington; George Tobeau, the Cleveland fielder; Kinsler, who played part of last season with New York and was secured by the Staten Island Athletic club to bring his base ball team in a winner, and Whithead and Johnson, who respectively pitched third base and center last year for Scranton."

"Speaking of 'Johnson' reminds me, do you know what they call the Scranton team down in New York? The base ball men who know I have one Johnson signed and another Johnson in prospect say 'I can't get any more 'Too Much Johnson' club—the name of the play, you know. Funny, isn't it? I don't take any stock in that 'too much' business, because everyone hereabouts knows what Johnson the fielder is, and Johnson the pitcher certainly proved himself a wonder in the west last season."

"I leave for New York tomorrow and will return in a few days to stay here permanently. By the 5th or 6th of April we will have all the players here and will start out for about one week's practice play in Hazleton, Wilkes-Barre, Carlisle and other nearby cities, returning to Scranton for exhibition games about April 15."

Concerning the present crude and unfinished grandstand Mr. Barnie vouched that all the objectionable features are to be done away with, the grandstand enlarged and other arrangements made to especially encourage the patronage of women and the business element.

SOUTH SIDE NEWS.

James Edwards Assaulted by Robert McCrea—Cases Heard Before Alderman Donovan—Other Notes.

Between 11 and 12 o'clock Saturday night an assault was committed on James Edwards, of Cedar avenue, by Contractor Robert McCrea, of Pittston avenue. Mr. Edwards was severely punished and went yesterday before Mayor Connell and swore out a warrant for his assailant's arrest. Both men used to be warm friends and this act of hostility between them has caused much gossip. Mr. Edwards is a most inoffensive citizen and has many friends. Contractor McCrea is highly regarded, and, therefore, on account of the standing of both men, the assault has received much comment. Mr. Edwards was passing on his way home and met McCrea opposite the latter's house on Pittston avenue. There were a few words, but none to justify the attack.

Threatening to Kill.

Alderman C. C. Donovan, of the Twelfth ward, issued a warrant for the arrest of James J. Rogers, of Prospect avenue, on complaint of Joseph Hickey, also of Prospect avenue, and the hearing was held yesterday morning, which resulted in having Rogers furnish $500 bail to appear at an early date in court charged with flourishing a revolver and threatening to unload the contents of the weapon into Hickey's body. John Schamber, of the Nineteenth ward, had a hearing before the same alderman and was committed to jail in default of bail. Alderman Donovan was surrounded by a mob of rioters yesterday morning by Mrs. Schamber. She swore that her husband was on the way path and had threatened to kill her and then commit suicide.

Shorter Paragraphs.

Mrs. Philip Graf, of South Washington avenue, is recovered from her recent illness.

Miss Louise McNamara, of Olyphant, spent yesterday as the guest of Miss Emma Dunleavy, of Pittston avenue.

Assistant Street Commissioner Peter Hiltz, whose leg was broken by his falling on the ice, is getting around nicely.

Conductor Henry Mahoney's car broke down on this side yesterday evening about supper time and delayed travel at a time when the street cars are in demand.

No one should fail to attend the entertainment of the Columbus council, Young Men's Institute, tonight at Dr. Manley's hall. An elaborate programme of musical numbers has been arranged.

The condition of John Connors, of Genet street, who was frightfully burned on the Bellevue shaft, is unimproved and he may not be strong enough to recover.

BEING ARGUED TO JURY

Evidence All Heard in the Rostovsky Murder Case.

PROLONGED SESSION OF COURT

The Case Will Go to the Jury by Noon Today—Judge Albright Will Leave for Home on Noon Train and Return on Friday.

Court did not adjourn until after 4 o'clock yesterday, because Judge Albright wants to get the Rostovsky murder case ended in time to enable him to make the noon train for his home in Allentown; and the trial will be resumed at 8:30 this morning. Ex-Judge Stanton opened the defendant's side of the case yesterday and declared that evidence would be produced to prove that Rostovsky was acting in self defense when he committed the crime of which he is indicted. John H. Jordan, of the Truth, was the first to testify. He described the appearance of Rostovsky's house the day after the murder was committed. The ravages of a cyclone could not have done more havoc than the crowd of which the murdered man was one. There were not a single pane of glass in the front part of the house; the doors and windows were no longer there. Everything was broken, the furniture, pool table and clock.

After Mr. Jordan's testimony was given the defendant, John Sylvester Rostovsky, took the stand and testified on the Sunday morning he killed Clute, the murdered man and Joseph Bidogus came to Michael Rostovsky's saloon. Michael is the defendant's brother. Bidogus wanted whiskey and was refused. Enraged at being denied the liquor he picked up a billiard cue and smashed a lamp with it. Clute took a hand in at the same game and both accomplished the task of destroying several window panes, besides the lamp, before the Rostovskys interposed to prevent them.

Acted in Self Defense.

The noise attracted a crowd and that added to the confusion. Finally Michael Rostovsky got the crowd out and Clute, in going out the door, made an assault on the defendant, who had in his hands a billiard cue. As a matter of self defense the defendant struck Clute with it. He denied that he used a knife on the man. His story was interpreted by Martin Woghsner. A noticeable feature of the four homicide cases, the Beck, Bochimo, Rtminsky, and this one, that have been tried within the past six months, is that none of the defendants could either understand or speak the English language.

The defendant was cross-examined rigidly by District Attorney Jones, but he did not waver. He did not, he swore, strike Clute until after the dead man had struck him first.

H. M. Harlow, of Peckville, went over to identify the best dog and he described the condition of the house, corroborating what had been already said on this point. William Edwards swore that the house was in the worst state he ever saw a man's castle in. District Attorney Jones asked him if he observed the condition of the pool table. He admitted he did, and that Mr. Jones said, "Was it smashed?" "Indeed, it was," said the witness. "But you bought it afterward, didn't you? It was good enough for you to purchase, wasn't it?" and to this query the witness answered with a self-abashed smile and a nod of the head. Thomas Reddington took the stand and between periods of laughter, he swore to the condition of the house.

Mrs. Agnes Rostovsky, wife of Michael Rostovsky, was the last witness, and her testimony tended to justify the murder. She was in the bedroom up stairs with the two women on the night when the fusillade began and stones came through the window into her room like a shower of hail. The missiles came through the window while there was a window.

Afraid of Her Life.

She was afraid of her life and retreated with her child to the cellar. She did not see the light, but she knew that her assailant had entered and was set upon by the crowd. August Millin and Anthony Boomas were recalled to testify with regard to whether or not the blow that killed Clute was struck inside the house before the battering began or afterward. They did not know. At this point the defendant and Attorney O'Brien and Stanton submitted fourteen lay verdicts to the court.

Attorney O'Brien came at 2:45 to address the jury and consumed more than two hours in his argument. He told the jury that a verdict of acquittal ought to be rendered because the defendant was acting in self-defense. Mr. O'Brien's speech was eloquent and logical and brought out all the mitigating circumstances of the crime. District Attorney Jones does not intend to take up more than three-quarters of an hour with his argument. Judge Albright will return tomorrow morning to take the verdict if the jury shall have agreed.

Run Over by an Electric Car.

A singular accident befel Mrs. Annie Kelly, of 211 West Market street, yesterday while waiting for a street car near the Providence power house. Mrs. Kelly was walking the track, and moved out of the way of an approaching car and halted the motorman to stop. By some means, which she is unable to explain, her foot slipped on the rail, and the wheel passed over it, crushing the toes. She was taken to the Lackawanna hospital and afforded temporary relief, but her relatives were anxious to take her home. Mrs. Kelly was removed home to West Market street, and it was stated last night that it would be necessary to amputate the injured toes.

Postponed for One Year.

Information has been received at the board of trade office that the promoters of the carpet weaving industry from Philadelphia, have postponed, for one year, their intended removal to this city. This step has been necessitated by the delay in securing a site, but they are confident that at the expiration of twelve months they will be located in Scranton.

CHILD SICKLY?

Strength Is Not Enough for Proper Growth.

The Young Body Fails to Get Well Nourished.

Needs Richer Bone and Tissue Forming Food.

Body Cannot Grow Without Pure, Sturdy Blood.

Unequalled Value of Paine's Celery Compound.

From birth till past the age of 30 there is growth; some of the bones do not completely knit till 35.

All this time in addition there is the steady waste of the tissues that must be replaced. The demand upon the vitality and upon the powers of assimilation is thus enormously increased. These years, without plenty of rich, nourishing blood, growth must be defective and tardy. But when it courses through all the arteries in a full, vigorous stream, growth goes on steadily and perfectly.

With countless numbers of frail youngsters physicians see whose pithy thin wrists and bloodless faces cry out for better nourishment. All this does not escape the vigilant insight of parents. In thousands of homes it is well known that the boys and girls are somehow badly nourished.

The weak stomachs and organs of assimilation cannot extract the food for growing nerves and brain in sufficient quantities from the ordinary diet. A special nerve compound is what they need. Paine's celery compound is Professor Edward W. Phelps' great preparation for nourishing these little frames and making them grow into strong, active men and women. Dr. Phelps, upon whom colleges conferred their highest honors for his invaluable investigations in medicine, knew from first-hand experience the exact needs of these little sufferers.

A chorus of gratitude has gone up all over the country, from mothers of children once weakly and pale, without promise of ever growing into robust men and women, who have outgrown weakness and a lack of vitality by the use of Paine's celery compound, taken with the regularity that physicians adhere to when prescribing this wonderful nerve and blood restorative.

It is valuable in all wasting diseases, in cleansing the blood of rheumatism, neuralgia, scrofula, and supplying new and healthy vital fluid—its value can neither be weighed nor measured.

As the great modern nerve and brain strengthener and restorer Paine's celery compound is pronounced invaluable by all progressive physicians. Give this grand invigorator a fair trial, and be convinced.

Award of Arbitrators.

The award of arbitrators in the trespass case of Daniel S. Deemer against John F. Roebuck and J. L. Roebuck was yesterday filed with Prothonotary Pryor by Arbitrators William H. Roe, M. W. Lowry and G. M. Watson. It gives $135.25 to the plaintiff, who sued to recover damages for what he claimed was the unlawful seizure and sale of his goods for rent by the defendant.
